Improvisational Theater

Team Cohesion, New Perspectives, Spontaneity

Impro Classes

In an era characterized by artificial intelligence and perpetual connectivity, it is increasingly essential to deliberately emphasize the human element and foster interaction, preferably in a wholly offline environment. My Improvisational Theater workshops, tailored as team-building or group activities for organizations and individuals, cultivate precisely these spaces.

Are you seeking an event that inspires, connects individuals, and creates a lasting impact? An Improvisational Theater workshop may be precisely what you need. These courses cultivate a sense of comfort and promote the bravery to explore and embrace spontaneity.

Participants also discover how "failure as an opportunity" can lead to success and how collaborative play can markedly enhance agility, trust, and cooperation in daily life.

About Me

I integrate two realms: The fusion of over 20 years of experience in theater and film with psychotherapeutic expertise, derived from my training as a Heilpraktiker für Psychotherapie and my advanced studies in Gestalt therapy, informs my perspective on individuals and groups.

For the past nine years, I have concentrated on improvisational theatre. What started as a curiosity has evolved into a profound passion, from which my unique style has emerged.

I now conduct regular improv workshops and facilitate groups in exploring the joy of play, presence, and the courage to experiment, incorporating humor, mindfulness, and psychological insights that can be directly applied to daily life and work.
